Equal to Occasions.

Lord Whitworth, who held various posts of honor in English diplomatic circles, was a kindly, gracious gentleman as well as a wit and a man of the world. He had indeed almost measured swords with Napoleon at the Tuileries when that despot railed at England for not having evacuated Egypt and Malta, accused her of having violated treaties and ended by flourishing a cane dangerously near the face of the English embassador.

Lord Whitworth put his hand on the hilt of his sword.

"What would you have done if the emperor had struck you?" he was afterward asked.

"I would have felled him to the ground," was the quiet answer.

Perhaps the best story told of him is one showing how his quick wit disposed of a rival. When he was at the Russian court, Fox sent there as a sort of embassador of his own a man named Adair, the son of a surgeon.

One day the empress, speaking in French, said to Lord Whitworth:

"Is he a very important man, this M. Adair?"

"Not so very, madame," replied Lord Whitworth, "although his father was a grand saigneur," a remark which readers of French will recognize as a very good pun, for the word as used by Lord Whitworth means "blood letter," while by its sound it also meant a great lord. —Youth's Companion.

The Poetical Old Lady.

An old lady in a small country town has kept for the last 20 years and still keeps her accounts in doggerel verse. For example (and the specimens given are actual extracts from her books), if Mrs. Jones has half a pound of tea on "tick" it is entered thus:

Mrs. Jones doth owe to me
For half a pound of Souchong tea 1s. 4d.

Or if Mr. Smith buys a pound of sugar, two pounds of rice and a Dutch cheese the entry will be under Smith's name:

A pound of moist sugar
And two of best rice,
With four pounds of Dutch cheese,
Which I hope will be nice—1s. 11½d.

And so on all through the book. In some cases the verses express doubt as to the customer's intention or ability to pay for the goods ordered. Thus:

Lizzie Barber for her father
Had some flour today;
Some apples, too, and toilet soap,
But I don't believe he'll pay 2s. 3d.
[This booking work will drive me mad
When I think of folk like they.]

The lines in brackets are very suggestive if not exactly grammatical.—Chambers' Journal.

Cats and Monkeys.

All animals, even the wildest, can be subjected in some way to the dominion of man and be domesticated to some extent. Here, for instance, are two very curious facts about cats. Many persons, including some of our greatest naturalists, believe that our English domestic cat is descended from the Egyptian domestic cat. Yet all records go to prove that the cats of Egypt lived in droves, were cared for in droves, were fed in droves and worshiped in droves, with the result that Egyptian cats never got domesticated or became half as intelligent as ours.

The like truth is suggested from India, where monkeys are worshiped. These are allowed to become nuisances. They are fed and they have any amount of liberty, and what is the consequence? They never lose their innate savagery. The method of caring for them has been wrong. All the devotion and care expended on them are practically wasted, and if we treated our cats in the same fashion as the Indians do these monkeys they would become just as wild and undomesticated.—Cassell's Magazine.

GYPSYING.

When you and I go gypsying, we'll laugh the whole day long.
We'll stop at every cottage gate and thrill our hearts with song.
We'll live the joy of summer skies when hopes are well begun.
When you and I go gypsying, we'll travel toward the sun.

We'll use the old, old magic that shall never cease to be;
The charm of love whose mystic spell is over you and me.
Our hearts will know a rapture fine, that time can ne'er outrun.
When you and I go gypsying, we'll travel toward the sun.

With some far eastern splendor strange, with some unbought delight
We'll fill our eager vision as it looks beyond the night,
And still, to feed the fire that burns within our heart as one,
When you and I go gypsying, we'll travel toward the sun.

We'll leave behind us every care and see our way afar,
Beyond the low horizon's verge to some love lighted star.
We'll dream the dreams of earth no more, a happier dream begun.
When you and I go gypsying, we'll travel toward the sun.

—Lewis Worthington Smith in Independent.

GINGER NUTS.

The king of Macronia (the land of macaroons), who for some time had been in the prime of life, had just arisen and was seated undressed beside his bed. His house minister was there and handed him his hose. In the heel of one sock was a hole. The king was wont to pay more attention to his beautiful boots than to whole socks. However, the hole did not escape his sharp eyes. In disgust he took the sock out of the minister's hand and pushed his forefinger through the hole clear up to his knuckle, saying:

"O! what use is it that I am king since I have no wife? What do you say to my marrying?"

"Your majesty, that is a sublime thought, a thought that would certainly have occurred to me, if I may make so bold, had I not felt that your majesty most assuredly would deign to utter it for yourself."

"Beautiful!" replied the king. "But do you believe that I shall be able to find a wife suitable for me?"

"Pooh! Ten where others could find but one!" said the courtier.

"A princess to please me must be clever and beautiful, and there is one point on which I lay especial stress: You know how fond I am of gingernuts. In my whole kingdom there is not a person who understands how to bake them exactly right, and the princess whom I choose must know how to do this to perfection."

When the minister heard this, he gave a whistle of dismay, but quickly collecting himself said:

"A king like your majesty will without doubt find a princess who understands how to bake ginger nuts."

"We shall see, we shall see!" said the king, and on the very same day, accompanied by the minister, he began a tour of the kingdoms of his different neighbors whom he knew had princesses to give in marriage.

Only three princesses were found who were beautiful and clever enough to suit the king, and of these not one could bake ginger nuts.

"I really cannot bake ginger nuts," said the first princess in answer to the king's question, "but I can make beautiful little almond cakes. Wouldn't those suit you?"

"No," replied the king. "I must have ginger nuts."

The second princess in reply to the same question mocked at the king and said angrily:

"What nonsense! Princesses who can bake ginger nuts do not exist!"

The king fared worse at the hands of the third, who was the most beautiful and the most charming.

She gave the king no opportunity to ask his question, but took things into her own hands and demanded whether he knew how to play on the jew's harp, and when he said he did not she sent him away. He pleased her very much, she admitted, but she was so extravagantly fond of the music of the jew's harp that she would never marry a man that could not play it.

The king and his minister returned home, and as they alighted from their carriage the king said:

"Nothing has come of all this!"

"Nothing, your majesty," said the minister mournfully.

"What shall I do?" sighed the king. "I must have a wife."

"If you would only give up the ginger nuts," ventured the minister timidly.

"For the good of my people I will!" exclaimed the noble king, and he resolved to marry the princess whom he had first sought.

"She is the one who knows how to bake almond cakes," he said. "Go and ask her if she will be my wife."

The minister went, returned the next day, and said she was no longer in the matrimonial market, for she had married the king of the Land of Capers.

"Then go to the second princess," said the king. Again the minister returned without having accomplished anything, for this princess had died.

Then the king thought a long time. He absolutely must have a wife, so he ordered the minister to go to the third princess and see if she had changed her mind. The minister obeyed, though he did it unwillingly, for his wife assured him that his errand was a useless one.

The king anxiously awaited his return. His mind was on her question concerning the jew's harp, and the remembrance of it was most annoying.

The third princess received the minister very cordially. She said she had changed her mind about marrying a man who could play the jew's harp.

"Dreams are but vain and empty things, especially those of youth."

She realized that her wish could not be fulfilled, and as the king pleased her she had decided to marry him.

The minister rode home as fast as his horse could go, and the king embraced him, and conferred so many decorations on him that he had to wear some of them on his head.

The town was trimmed with bunting, garlands were thrown across the streets from house to house, and the marriage was so splendidly celebrated that the people could talk of nothing else for a fortnight.

All went well with the king and queen for a year. The king had quite forgotten his ginger nuts and the queen her jew's harp.

However, the king got out of bed one morning with the wrong foot foremost, and after that, of course, all went wrong. It rained the entire day; the imperial globe fell down and the little cross on the top broke off; the court painter brought a new globe on which Macronia was painted red instead of blue, as he had been ordered, and to cap the climax the queen had a headache.

It came to pass that the wedded pair quarreled for the first time; why or wherefore they knew not. In short, the king was cross and the queen was snappy, and would have the last word. After the quarrel had gone on for some time the queen shrugged her shoulders disdainfully and said:

"You've found fault the entire day. And why, pray—you, who can't so much as play the jew's harp?"

He retorted sharply:

"You've nothing to say. You can't even bake ginger nuts."

For the first time the queen did not reply, but remained quiet, and without exchanging another word they went to their respective rooms.

The queen seated herself in a corner of the sofa and wept and thought sadly:

"What a foolish wife you are! Have you lost your reason? You should not have begun a quarrel so stupidly."

The king paced up and down his room, rubbed his hands and said:

"It is truly a bit of good luck that my wife can't bake ginger nuts. Why did I answer her when she reproached me for not knowing how to play on the jew's harp?"

After repeating this three or four times he felt more cheerful. He began to whistle his favorite tune, examined the large portrait of the queen which hung in his room, mounted a chair, and with his handkerchief brushed off a cobweb that hung over her nose and said:

"She is surely fretting, my good little wife. I'll see what she's doing."

He went down the long hall to her door. All had gone wrong on this day. The servant had even forgotten the lamps, although it was 8 o'clock and quite dark. He entered the room, putting out his hands before him so as not to stumble against the furniture. Suddenly he felt something warm.

"Who is it?" he said.

"It is I," replied the queen.

"What's the matter, my pet?"

"I want to ask your forgiveness," said the queen, "for having been so cross."

"You don't need to do that at all," said the king, throwing his arms about her neck. "I'm more to blame than you are. Let's forget all about it. There are two terms that we'll never allow used in our kingdom, jew's harp and"—

"And ginger nuts," interrupted the queen, laughing, as she secretly wiped two little tears from her eyes.—From the German For Short Stories.

Trees In New Zealand.

The kauri is the monarch of the New Zealand forest, an indigenous pine, growing to enormous height, frequently 80 feet, before it sends out a bough, while its average diameter is from eight to nine feet. It is said to be 800 years in reaching maturity. There is no underbrush in a kauri forest, the prince of trees permitting no rival within his domain. The totara is another species of pine, which, however, has none of the characteristics of the coniferæ of other countries, either in habit or in appearance.

The most singular of all is the rata, a peculiar tree with somewhat the nature of a parasite. If it springs up near a rimu pine, it winds about it like a huge vine, its tightening coils gradually crushing the life out of the unfortunate pine. When it reaches the top, it sends out branches and stands a hollow shell, its coils knit closely together by a dense network of fibers, which appear in the last stage of its growth. It has a like affinity for its own species, and a second rata springing up beside one of earlier growth will absorb and destroy it as it destroys the rimu. If, however, neither rimu nor rata is within reach, it grows up a respectable and well behaved tree, attaining a height of from 50 to 60 feet, and is used for masts in shipbuilding.—Chautauquan.

The Eve of the Future.

"The Eve of the Future" is the theme of a writer in the Paris Figaro who is almost willing to admit that she will be an American type, the result of the intermingling of many races and the pursuit of outdoor sports. She will have, he declares, a straight brow, rather low than high; a neck well poised on sloping shoulders—a neck to wear high, narrow collars; slender arms, a waist that one could span with two hands, hardly any hips and an independent, manly carriage. "The aristocratic air," he continues, "is not always linked with beauty. As a matter of fact 'blood does not always tell.'

"One finds the aristocratic type in all classes of the social scale—the rather long and finely cut nose, the firm chin, long, slender white hands, with slim and tapering fingers; tall, erect figure; long, narrow, delicate foot, made for pointed shoes; the whole person alert, elegant, snella, as the Italians say. We agree with the Americans in attaching more importance to the expression than to the shape of the features, and we prefer a spirituelle, mobile and vivacious face to features of perfect purity and perfect immobilty. Form attracts us, but we are in love with life, and it is the secret of the Parisienne's charm."

Luxury and Extravagance.

In general the destruction of wealth is a social as well as an individual loss. The wealth that is used up in riotous living is diverted from better uses. Extravagance is not necessarily luxury. The mere transfer of wealth from one hand to another does not involve destruction. Consumption means using up. When a nation spends $250,000 for a great picture, the wealth is not destroyed; it is simply transferred. When the jubilee plunger ran through $2,500,000 in 12 calendar months, the wealth of the world was diminished only by the amount of it he and those who sponged on him put down their throats and otherwise wantonly destroyed. In so far as it was simply transferred to others to whom he paid extravagant prices, it was not destroyed.

To give high prices for articles which are rare is not necessarily luxury, for the price and the rare edition or the old master both remain. It is true that extravagance may mean the transfer of wealth to those who will not use it well, but it does not usually mean this. It generally involves a transfer to the hands of those who will use it more wisely.—Journal of Ethics.

The Missing Pawn.

One Saturday afternoon two friends of the noble game of chess sat playing together in a cafe. Suddenly one of them started up in a passion and exclaimed, "You have pocketed one of my pawns."

A glance at the board and men sufficed to show that a pawn was really missing. The excitement over the lost pawn became so intense that a lively altercation ensued, in which everybody in the room took part.

Quiet was at last restored, and the player who had lost his pawn resumed his seat and began to drink his coffee, which was covered with thick cream, when he all at once got something into his throat which nearly choked him. He succeeded, however, in extricating the intrusive article, which turned out to be the missing pawn.

The chess player, intent on the game, had thrown it into his cup in place of a lump of sugar.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Novel Dinner.

Victor Smith, appointed collector of customs at Port Townshend, Wash., by Secretary Chase, succeeded in inducing the government to move the custom house from that point to Port Angeles, where he maintained himself for a time in a semibarbaric proprietorship. He once invited the officers of the revenue cutter Shubrick to dine at his house, and the officers arrayed themselves in full dress and went ashore in state to wait upon Collector Smith at his mansion, which was then in an unfinished condition.

In due course of time the collector, assisted by his wife, brought out two carpenter's saw horses, on which was placed a board covered with wrapping paper. The repast was then set forth. Smith, taking from his pockets three big apples, gave one to each of the three officers, with a small forked stick, remarking, "You'll have to roast your own apples."—Argonaut.

His Justice In a Fortnight.

Lord Chief Justice Cockburn, when at the bar, defended a Scotsman for murder. A long and eloquent fight was in vain; sentence of death was passed. Then began the condemned Scotsman to abuse his counsel. "I ha' nae got justice the day," he declared. "Possibly not, but you'll get it in a fortnight," was the crushing reply.—London Outlook.

Bad Models to Follow.

He—A self made man is common enough, but we never hear of a self made woman.

She—Considering the kind of articles the men turn out who are in the selfmaking business, you can hardly blame the women for not taking up the occupation.—Boston Transcript.

The weather last Sunday and Monday was the warmest ever experienced in this valley in February

The artist who is in search of attitudes descriptive of torture, and poses depicting suffering, need not go to the Christian martyrs of old. If he could only see through the walls into tens of thousands of homes all over this land, he would see women undergoing tortures in silence without complaining, before which the brief ordeals of the martyrs pale into nothingness.

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangement of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. One of the worst effects of troubles of this kind is upon the nervous system. The tortures so bravely endured completely and effectually shatter the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all weakness and disease of the feminine organism. It makes it strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It checks exhausting drains and tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Good medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"Since my last child was born, thirteen years ago, I have suffered from uterine trouble," writes Mrs. Paul Devraine, of Jellico, Campbell Co., Tenn. "I consulted several doctors and took much medicine, but found no relief. I had very bad health for twelve years. Every month I was in bed a week before the monthly period and a week after. I was obliged to keep in bed for four months last summer. I was just like a corpse. I lost twenty-six pounds in four months. I was coughing so much I was considered in consumption. I suffered severely from pains in my back, bearing down pains in the womb, chills and cold sweats. After taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my coughing stopped, and after six bottles of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription my periods became regular and were passed without pain. Now I am fleshy, more so than ever before. My neighbors are surprised to see me in such good health after having seen me so low."

That Petition.

A petition is being circulated on the quiet in this county in the interest of Dan M. Burns' candidacy for the Federal Senatorship. Almost everybody signs any old petition on the spur of the moment, as one is only too glad to sign a paper when the joyful discovery is made that it is not a subscription paper and an appeal to the pocket. This being a fact, no doubt the petition in question will be "numerously signed" by thoughtless people in the goodness of their obliging but thrifty souls.

On its face the petition appears all right, as it appeals to the Republican members of the Legislature to break the deadlock and elect a Senator to succeed Mr. White. There is a little joker concealed in this innocent-appearing petition, however, that ought to be exposed in the Senatorial shuffle now going on at Sacramento. It is the card which the Burns push have concealed up their sleeve and they are doing their level best to play it in order to get away with the pot.

The real motive of this petition is to scare Assemblyman LeBaron and cause him to withdraw his support from Mr. Grant and transfer it to Mr. Burns. It will fail in its object, however, because the Assemblyman before he ever received his nomination at the Cloverdale Convention was an avowed supporter of Mr. Grant in his aspirations for the Senatorial toga. His friendship for the San Diegan was known to the Republicans of this county, many of whom were Mr. Grant's adherents then as they are his adherents now. In short, it would be political treachery on his part to desert Mr. Grant to further the political aspirations of his principal opponent in this senatorial struggle.

If Mr. Burns' supporters are sincere in their professions of loyalty to the Republican party and are not trying to foist their candidate on the Republicans of this State, who want none of him, and desire to break the Senatorial deadlock, why not abandon their dog-in the manger policy by withdrawing their man. He is the only stumbling block in the way of choosing Mr. White's successor.

SENATOR SIMS of this county in his gallant defense of the press on the floor of the Senate, when the bill to squelch journalism in this State came up for discussion, ought not to be forgotten by the editors of California in the years to come. During the debate Senator Sims in replying to Morehouse, one of the supporters of the iniquitous measure, said: "Mr. President, I hate to intrude myself upon the Senate again, but I desire to say a few words in reply to the Senator from Santa Clara. I listened with a great deal of interest to the words of my distinguished friend from Santa Clara while he discussed the struggles of his early manhood, but I cannot see that the vicissitudes and obstacles of his early life have anything to do with the advocacy or defense of this measure. Further, I desire to state that it does require some manhood to stand up here and disagree with those with whom a man is associated, and I can see no reason for stating that a man is a coward because he votes from honest conviction and does not follow the distinguished gentleman into that imaginary graveyard which he has created in the future for the editors of this State. I can look now in my mind's eye, as through the corridors of some great cathedral, and see ghosts of some men who have been taken away by the remorseless hand of death. I suppose when this law is passed there will be many promising young men taken away from their fields of action. It has been the experience of the universal world, and in every struggle for human rights it has been determined that the better informed the public are of public men and measures the more intelligent they are, and the better government exists and is created and continued."

A. B. WARE of Santa Rosa has had his appointment as a Trustee of the Home for Feeble Minded at Eldridge revoked by Governor Gage, who will appoint a Republican in his place.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

In the probate court several important matters were settled by Judge Dougherty, and some interesting matters were placed on Judge Burnett's criminal calendar. The sentence upon Dolf Wood and the drawing of a jury in the Chapman case were probably the matters in which the interest of the day centered.

Judge Dougherty's calendar is as follows:

The will of the late James H. Curtiss was admitted to probate George Curtiss and Sarah Jane Curtiss were appointed executors.

The court made an order assigning the estate of the late J. Frank Haigh to his widow Mrs. Minnie Haigh.

No bond was required on the order to sell real estate in the estate of Edward Surryhine.

The final account of the estate of James L. Clark was settled.

Ellen Donelly was appointed administratrix on the estate of John Carter in a bond of $3000.

These probate cases were continued: Estate of Bartholomew Toroni and estate of James Titin, to February 27th; estate of Elizabeth Kron, to March 13th.

In the matter of the estate of Walter T. Brown and others, who are minors, Kate M. Crist was appointed guardain.

The trial of the action of Minerva A. Newell against Charles E. Newell was continued to February 27th. The trial of the action of James M. Morris against Edward Palmer, was set for March 14th.

Another week's continuance was granted in the Dan Behmer insolvency matter.

The decree for the partition of real estate brought by W. P. Barnes against Henry S. Barnes was granted.

Dolf Wood, the man held for trial from Healdsburg for selling liquor to Indians, saw fit to withdraw his plea of "not guilty" and entered one of "guilty" in Judge Burnett's court on Monday morning. He was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in Folsom.

An information was filed against Ong Foon and Peter Torliatt, the former charged with murder, the latter with assault with a deadly weapon.

These civil matters were continued: Weilby vs. Duhring, California Winemaker's Corporation against Alton and Mary F. Silvey vs. George Ivancovich, all to February 27th.

The demurrer to the amended complaint was overruled in the action of Basli vs. Castagnacio. Five days were allowed to answer.

ASK YOUR DOCTOR!

Ask your physician this question, "What is the one great remedy for consumption?" He will answer, "Cod-liver oil." Nine out of ten will answer the same way.

Yet when persons have consumption they loathe all fatty foods, yet fat is necessary for their recovery and they cannot take plain cod-liver oil. The plain oil disturbs the stomach and takes away the appetite. The disagreeable fishy odor and taste make it almost unendurable. What is to be done?

This question was answered when we first made of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Although that was nearly twenty-five years ago, yet it stands alone today the one great remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

The bad taste and odor have been taken away, the oil itself has been partly digested, and the most sensitive stomach objects to it rarely. Not one in ten can take and digest the plain oil. Nine out of ten can take SCOTT'S EMULSION and digest it. That's why it cures so many cases of early consumption. Even in advanced cases it brings comfort and greatly prolongs life.

AN exchange tells of the three stingiest men on record. The first will not drink water unless it comes from a neighbor's well; the second forbids his family to write any but a small hand, as it wastes ink to make large letters; the third stops the clock at night to save the wear and tear of the machinery. All of them refuse to take a newspaper on the ground that it is a terrible strain on their spectacles to read.

SONOMA COUNTY HAPPENINGS.

California Northwestern Railway Extension.

A Petaluma Divorce Suit—Formation of a Bar Association—Accidents and Incidents.

The California Northwestern Railway Company, which recently leased the San Francisco and North Pacific or Donahue line, and of which A. W. Foster is president, is making arrangements to put a corps of surveyors in the field to make surveys for a road it intends building in Mendocino county this year. The new line will be an extension of the Donahue road from either Ukiah, Hopland or Healdsburg. In a general way Messrs. A. W. Foster, G. W. Prescott, G. A. Pope, I. H. Isham and F. A. Wickersham, the directors of the company, have in mind four possible routes All of these are to be carefully studied and the best one selected for the proposed extension.

One of the four routes commences at Ukiah and runs in a northerly direction through the towns of Calpella and Willits to a point on the south fork of the Eel river in Jackson Valley. The distance is about sixty miles. Another route, some thirty-five miles in length, runs from Ukiah almost due west to a point on the north fork of the Navarro river. A third possible route begins at Hopland, a station on the Donahue line south of Ukiah, and runs westerly through the town of Philo to the town of Christine, a distance of forty-five miles. A fourth route commences at Healdsburg and runs in a northwesterly direction to Christine. No matter which of these routes is selected, it is thought by the interested parties that the cost per mile for construction and equipment will not be less than $35,000. Bonds to the amount of $1,000,000 have been prepared and are now on deposit in the city ready to be issued for this new railway enterprise.

CAPT. PLESS, who recently visited John Herd's fleet of dredgers near Bethney, San Joaquin county, is loud in his praise of the Landy Brothers of this place, who have charge of one of the dredgers. He says that Capt. Jas. Landy stands at the head of the fleet to-day and that these young engineers owing to their industry and perseverence are considered the most competent dredger men on the Coast. Capt. Landy is home visiting with his mother at the present time, having earned a well-merited vacation of several weeks.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounged it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars reward for any case it fails to cure Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

Doctor Gave Hood's

Reduced in Weight by Serious Illness—Gaining Fast by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"The grip left my system in a very weak state. I had fallen off in weight from 140 to 119 pounds. I called on my doctor to give me something to build me up. He advised me to try a change of climate and also gave me Hood's Sarsaparilla, with the remark, 'that is the best,' and that I would not need any other medicine. After I had taken the first bottle I found myself greatly improved. I procured another bottle and also a box of Hood's Pills and I was soon perfectly well. I have since taken Hood's Sarsaparilla as a tonic and blood medicine and have always found it good. My husband and little daughter have also taken it with benefit. I have found Hood's Pills an excellent cathartic." MRS. C. F. ROTH, Vernon, Sutter Co., via Nicolaus, California.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Contemplated Road Improvement.

County Surveyor Smyth and Messrs Graham and Morris, recently appointed by the Board of Supervisors to survey the narrow lane, which now serves as a county road, from the iron bridge near the residence of Wm. McElroy to the main Petaluma road, finished their labors Thursday. The survey widens the road twenty-five feet. This strip of land will come off the farm of Mrs. Tate. For this piece of land and to pay cost of removing a fence $500 has been offered and refused, the owner placing the value of the land and damages at $600. It is to be hoped that the difference in the price asked and offered will be satisfactorily adjusted, as this thoroughfare shortens the distance between Sonoma and Petaluma at least a mile or two. Several years ago the county erected an expensive iron bridge across Sonoma Creek with the object in view of widening the lane and making it the main road to Petaluma, since which time it has been practically closed to travel during the rainy season.

A Horse Fell on Him.

Mike Broecki, an employee on Fillipini's dairy farm, while driving stock on Sunday last met with a painful accident. The horse he was riding stumbled and fell and Broecki was thrown to the ground and the animal fell upon him, badly injuring his right hip. Dr. Davis examined the hurt and discovered that no bones were broken, and the injured man, who is now stopping at the Garibaldi House, was able to be up and around a couple of days after the accident.

THOMAS TRACY CONVICTED.

Branded as a Sneak Thief by a Jury.

The Man Suspected of Many Acts of Petty Thievery Goes to Jail for Six Months.

Thomas Tracy, who located in this valley about a year ago for the ostensible purpose of engaging in farming, but who had been suspected for a long time of being the author of the many petty thefts committed in this valley the past six or eight months, was convicted in Judge Cheney's court last Saturday of stealing two hoses, a chair and spirit level from the Van Hagen farm. The prisoner was ably defended by Fred'k T. Duhring. The prosecution was conducted by Assistant District Attorney Berry. The latter had a soft snap, as it was apparent before the evidence was half in that the jury were convinced of the prisoner's guilt. After the verdict had been rendered Judge Cheney sentenced Tracy to six months in the County Jail. The Judge, on motion of the prosecution, dismissed two other charges of petty larceny which were registered against the accused.

Tracy was taken to Santa Rosa by officer Ohm and landed in jail Saturday night.

In justice to the prisoner we will state that he claims to be innocent and the victim of circumstances. He testified on the witness stand that the articles he was convicted of stealing were included in the bill of sale given him by the Van Hagens when he bought them out eight months ago. The bill of sale was produced in court and its provisions stipulated that everything on the place was included in the sale. The Van Hagens contended, however, that the hose, chair and spirit level were not included in the sale. The jury agreed with the prosecuting witnesses and Tracy got it in the back of the neck.

SCHELLVILLE ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Hall visited in the city one day this week.

Mrs. Arch Cook spent several days this week in San Francisco.

Miss D Virginia Howe was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Dozier of Napa Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Ellen Cassebohm, who has been spending the last five months in Seattle, is expected home next month.

On the evening of Washington's Birthday Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ohm very pleasantly entertained some of their Schellville friends at a Colonial social and supper. The interior of the house was very prettily and appropriately decorated with the national colors, which were interspersed with pictures representing the colonial days. During the evening patriotic music was rendered. Covers were laid for nine and all did ample justice to the dainties set before them. At each place was an appropriate souvenier of the occasion—a little gilt hatchet tied with the red, white and blue.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEEMEN.

Inspected the Home at Eldridge Last Saturday.

The Assembly Committee on State Hospitals and Asylums visited the California Home of the Feeble Minded at Eldridge last Saturday and made a thorough inspection of the institution. In the evening the children of the Home gave an excellent entertainment to the visitors in which they showed good training. The committee highly complimented Dr. and Mrs. Osborne on the manner in which they conducted the institution. The committee was composed of Assemblymen W. F. Cowan of Santa Rosa, Merritt, Cargill, Marvin, Boynton, LaBaree, Lundquist, Crowley and Mead.

Sunday morning they left for Ukiah, where they inspected the State Insane Asylum at that place.

The committee submitted a report of its visit to the Assembly Wednesday. They found a happy condition of affairs existing at the Home, and recommended the passage of the several appropriation bills in the interest of the institution now pending before the Assembly. One of the bills provides for the purchase of additional lands and another makes provision for the erection of a number of additional cottages.

THE BITERS BIT.

Sequel to the Late Scrimmage in Glen Ellen.

The preliminary examination of J. H. Steckoffer, charged with assault, took place before Judge Cheney in Glen Ellen on Tuesday. The Judge, after listening patiently to the testimony, discharged Steckoffer and held the complaining witnesses, Celestino Guidotti and Louis Del Margo, to answer to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. The bail was fixed at $1000, and not being able to secure bondsmen both men were taken to Santa Rosa and placed in the County Jail. Their preliminary examination took place yesterday afternoon before Judge Cheney.

Steckoffer, who is an inoffensive old soldier from the Veteran's Home at Yountville, was defended by attorney Duhring of this place. The men who caused his arrest entered his harness shop in Glen Ellen, forced him out into the street and chased him all over the town and into a clump of bushes, where they hunted him like wild game with a great big frontier six shooter, a fistful of rocks and a knife. Aug Martens, who attempted to intervene as a peacemaker, had a big gun poked at him by Del Margo and retired in good order, and still lives to enlist to fight the Filipinos.

Can Cubans Govern Themselves?

One of the best known diplomatists recently declared that the Cubans are utterly incapable of governing themselves and that the United States must maintain its present control indefinitely, or else annex the island. There will be those who will dispute this opinion, but there are none who dispute the the well established fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is capable of governing and controlling common diseases of stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. It is a remedy that is backed by fifty years of success. It is an ideal medicine for constipation, the most effective purifier for the blood: a tissue and strength builder for those who are predisposed to lung troubles, and for nervousness it is of wonderful benefit. It stirs up a lazy liver, stimulates inactive kidneys and as an appetizer is incomparable. Those whose stomachs are out of order should not fail to try a bottle.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Appropriately Commemorated by the Sonoma Native Sons.

The birth of the "Father of His Country" was appropriately commemorated in this place by Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N. S. G. W., at Union Hall on Wednesday evening by a literary entertainment and dancing. The large hall and stage were decorated with American flags, streamers, tropical foliage and evergreens, with a Bear flag placed here and there.

The exercises were patriotic to the core and made every true American heart in that audience swell with pride at the greatness and grandeur of their native land. The exercises consisted of patriotic songs, addresses, recitations and instrumental music. Following was the programme:

Music ..... Orchestra
Opening Address ..... Benj. Weed
Recitation ..... Mrs. Parker
Song, "Star spangled Banner," Miss Claire Hope.
Address of the evening ..... C. D. Vogelsang
Solo, "My Country 'tis of Thee," Miss Claire Hope.
Remarks ..... Grand Secretary Lunstedt
Vocal Solo, "Columbia," Miss L. Schiller

Mr. Weed, in his opening address, said:

"We are met this evening to celebrate the birth of a man—God be thanked every inch of him man—George Washington. In all of his lineaments, proportions, actions, we find the characteristics of the citizen ideal—aristocratic by the sovereign right of intellect and democratic by the sovereign mandates of his conscience. A man so fashioned by the inscrutable laws of God that he was equal to the years in which he lived, and equal not to them only, but voiceful to the years to be. For so luminous was his understanding, so extended was his vision that now, in this time of uncertainty and doubt, when the pathway of our nation's progress seems to be divided, when those in whom we are accustomed to repose confidence are giving contrary counsels, we are turning back the pages of history to drink of his wisdom. And it is with confidence that we do so. For the wisdom that directed the forces of revolution and established a constitution based on the will of the people, expressed in the large utterance of virtuous experience, the belief that the Union thus formed must be maintained if the people are to enjoy the benign influence of good laws under a free government.

After a lapse of time this wisdom was forgotten by some, with the result that for four years we were in the throes of tumultuous war. For four years unhappiness was our lot. But right is right, and under the guidance of Washington's great brother, Lincoln, it came to pass that a government of the people, for the people and by the people did not perish from the earth. In the holy baptism of blood the wisdom of Washington was acknowledged by all. And so it is essentially right that we celebrate the birth of this man, who stands in our hierarchy of freedom as the first servant of liberty. It is good to remember with high rites this man in whom self reverence, self-knowledge, self-control, were the pillars on which rested a life so symmetrical that its every act seems to have been ordered in the light of truth."

PURIFYING BUTTER.

Rancidity Is Due to Decomposition and May Now Be Remedied.

It is with a certain feeling of regret that we understand that a new industry is about to be introduced in Ireland—namely, the making of good butter from bad. It has long been thought that if we could once be sure that there was no oleomargarine about, butter could be judged by its taste. What, then, are we to say to a process by which bad, rancid butter fat can be turned again to "fresh" butter? The data upon which the process is founded is comparatively simple, and the process itself, although somewhat elaborate, is after all only a rewashing and then a remaking of the butter.

What is unpleasant about it is that in future freshness and cleanliness of taste are to be no security that the butter is the fresh product of fresh cream, no guarantee that from cow to butter pat all has been clean and free from rottenness. The rancidity of butter is due to the liberation of butyric acid and other volatile acids and their derivatives, through the action of microbes—in other words, through the operation of decomposition. As is well known, this decomposition mostly takes place in butter which has been badly made, for really well made butter, from which all the casein and buttermilk has been worked out, will keep for a very long time.

In the process which has been lately introduced for the removal of these offensive products of decomposition the butter is melted down with a certain quantity of buttermilk and stirred until a fine emulsion is obtained. Hot air is then drawn through the melted liquid, by which means a churning action is set up, and while the volatile acids are carried off the solid impurities sink to the bottom and are removed. Then a current of cold air is made to take the place of the hot, and under its influence the butter begins to separate in granules as in the ordinary method of churning.

The result is admirable; good butter is made from bad, which is no doubt extremely ingenious. Nevertheless we do not like our old faiths to be so disturbed, and we had far rather feel that our pat of "best fresh" was churned out of new cream than that it was "aerated" out of rancid butter.—Hospital.

Farm Separators.

Eighteen months ago, says the Creamery Journal, it was hotly discussed whether the farm separator would grow in favor or be abolished. Now there is more known and less said. The most noise is always made by the opponents of a system. From the earliest historical times the raising of a hue and cry has been the resort of the enemies of men and of theories. When the people become generally informed this hue and cry grows feeble, and the infant is found to be either dead or a healthy, growing child. The farm separator is growing in favor. The whole milk system is firmly established in some localities, and it holds precarious existence in others. Wherever introduced, however, the farm separator is a great favorite. Creameries built for handling whole milk at first naturally discouraged the use of farm separators and refused to accept cream from them, but where there is a creamery near using farm separators whole milk creameries have found it necessary to reverse their rules and also take farm separator cream. But the introduction of farm separators, while it has astonished those opposed to them, has not equaled the expectations of some who are partisan friends of them. This is because the farmer is influenced by the prevalent desire to buy everything cheap. He may tell you that he is fully convinced that it would be a paying investment for him, but he believes the manufacturer would make more by the transaction than he would, and so he holds off, hoping they will be cheaper. Perhaps they will. Probably they will. Something will surely be offered to fill this demand for cheap machines. Whether the cheaper machine will be as good a machine as the well established machines now offered is a question for time to settle.

Selecting Dairy Cows.

In selecting a dairy cow, says Professor Haecker, we should try to obtain an animal with a dished face, prominent, lively eye, long body, deep through the middle, with thin neck, light shoulders, prominent hip bones, high pelvic arch, thin thighs, with high, arching flank, giving plenty of room for a good udder, which should extend well forward and well out and high behind, giving long and broad surface attachment to the body, with good sized teats, well placed. The legs should be short and clean, and there should be ample heart and lung room. It may be interesting to explain what is meant by certain of the points named. For instance, why do we call for a dished face in a cow? This is the reason. The dishing of the face is caused by the prominence of the eyes on either side.

A large, full eye is one of the several signs of a strong, nervous temperament. By a strong, nervous temperament we mean a large supply of nerve force, and this is one of the most necessary things a cow must have, if she does large dairy work. Another good indication of the nervous temperament is a strong, rugged backbone, rising well above the withers, with the ribs set well apart. Such a backbone, taken in connection with the appearance of the head and general lean appearance of the cow, is an indication of an extra large marrow, which shall furnish an abundant supply of nerve force to the mammary organs of the cow. In speaking of the pelvic arch is meant the strong rise of the backbone between the hips and the setting on of the tail. A prominent pelvic arch is decidedly a dairy point.

Notice of Business Change.

The old saying that "the unlooked-for always happens" may be true in the present instance. The Sonoma News is no more! Having sold the paper and its good will to Mr. Granice, the business and subscription books pass into his hands. Those who are in arrears for their paper will please pay Mr. Granice and those who have paid in advance will receive the INDEX-TRIBUNE to full extent of their subscriptions.

There are three reasons I might give for making this change. It is well known that I did not buy the News with the intention of running it myself. A person usually sells a commercial commodity when the price asked is accepted. The third reason is the more potent one—our patronizing territory is too limited to properly support two weekly newspapers.

But we do need and must have for the weal of the commonwealth one good, wide-awake paper, which shall be alive to the best interests of our people, and such a paper Mr. Granice will be able to furnish us providing he has the good will and support his paper merits. So we sincerely hope all our subscribers and patrons will lend a hand.

With a thank you to our friends and wishes for the success of the INDEX-TRIBUNE we break our quill.

E. E. THOMPSON.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: a sediment or setting indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. At druggists fifty cents or one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, if you send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in the INDEX-TRIBUNE.

A Prince as a Railway Guard.

Prince Chilkow, the Russian minister for railways, commenced his career by making a tour of the world in order to take note of all the latest inventions and to study the working of railroads abroad in a practical manner. He first of all worked as an ordinary mechanic in the locomotive works at Liverpool, after which he became a railway guard and afterward station master at an English town. Returning to Russia, he again worked as a mechanic and afterward as a station master. After passing several years on the Transcaspian railway he was made director of the Varsovie railway, then inspector general of railways and finally minister.—Paris Signal.

His Fall.

John Lancaster, the comedian, tells a story that comes all the way from Quebec. He was sightseeing with a Tommy Atkins one day while in that province, and they had as companion and guide an old soldier. When they reached the Wolfe monument, which is located on a historic spot, Tommy said, "Wot's this?"

The guide replied, "'Ere's where a great 'ero fell."

"Did hit 'urt 'im?" asked Tommy.

"'Urt 'im!" replied the guide. "W'y, 'ell! Hit killed 'im!"—New York Telegram.

Stopped the Duel.

This happened in Brazil: Felix Bocayuva and one Zuccharini of Sao Paulo are both journalists, the latter an Italian. Zuccharini challenged Bocayuva to a duel. "Certainly," replied the Brazilian in effect, "if you are good enough to fight with a gentleman. Get a certificate of character from your consul and I'll meet you." So Zuccharini applied to the Italian consul in Rio for a certificate of character. Learning the purpose, the consul refused, and one duel was off.
